

SEWARD HARBOR VIDEO SECURITY SYSTEM

Seward is a small town, located on the Kenai Peninsula, about 120 road miles from Anchorage.

Puffin Electric was the general contractor on this design-build job. We designed and installed a system of 8 video security cameras to allow the Seward Police to remotely monitor activity in several locations around their small boat harbor. Given the geographically widespread locations of the cameras (one camera was located several miles away from the other harbor cameras), we chose to use a wireless system. The inputs from all cameras are monitored via a 42" plasma screen located at the police station.

Some cameras are pan-tilt-zoom, allowing the police to remotely change the direction of view as needed from the keyboard at the police station.
